Financial Advisor Job Description

Start a brand new career with support and flexibility. We're looking for professionals with a track record of success to join our growing financial services firm. Ambitious people who don't want their careers to be limited by earning potential or corporate ladders. Driven leaders who are committed to making a difference in our clients' lives and their communities.

Your Practice.

As a Financial Advisor, you'll build your Edward Jones financial services practice in your community. You'll rely on your personal drive, leadership and relationship-building skills to build a book of business and deliver personalized investment solutions to your clients.

Your Skills.

Financial Advisors succeed by demonstrating a unique combination of ambition, self-motivation and commitment to establishing long-term client relationships. Financial Advisors are driven by performance, and we ensure that their compensation and earning potential is reflective of their performance. They're confident and possess the ability to think critically, with sound judgment. If you're a successful salesperson, accountant, banker or financial professional, your talents are highly valued in our line of work.

Your Support Team.

Although our Financial Advisors operate autonomous practices, they aren't on their own. We support our Financial Advisors across the nation with industry-leading* training that helps them succeed, no matter how long they've been with us. We also provide Financial Advisors with a firm-provided office and a Branch Office Administrator to help manage client services and marketing activities. For new Financial Advisors, we dedicate extensive professional resources to help you pass your required licensing exams, and provide financial support during your practice's first four years.

Your Rewards.

We believe hard work should be rewarded. At Edward Jones, we offer unlimited earning potential that's always connected to your practice's growth and your clients' success. Your compensation package will also include opportunities for commissions, bonuses, profit sharing and incentive travel. You'll also reap the benefits of running your own practice: freedom and flexibility to succeed while balancing your personal and professional lives.

Committed to Our Clients and to You.

You can make a difference by helping clients achieve their financial goals. You can achieve a career with support, autonomy and unlimited earning potential. Bring your ambition and leadership, and we'll help you get started. Take the next step, and take the lead running your own professional practice with Edward Jones.
